- By email to members
- By CIOB (HK) Journal

4) Expected benefits of the project and evaluation method

- CIOB(HK) have over 2,000 members in Hong Kong
- All of our members are involved with construction and related industry in Hong Kong and most of them are working as project manager in developer, consultant, design firm and construction firm.
- This event will treat as one of our CPD hour event. CIOB(HK) encourage our member to attend and let them to aware the latest development of urban renewal.
- Most of our members may not directly involve with urban renewal project, hence this seminar provide a good platform for them to networking and communicate with relevant speaker and share experience with them.
- CIOB(HK) will use form of questionnaire to collect their view regarding benefit of the event to them.
- CIOB(HK) will question to them about the involvement with Urban Renewal project.

CIOB(HK) feedback on The URS Review Partnering Organisation Programme on 29 April 2009 titled “Construction manager Experience Sharing in Heritage Project”

Nature of the event

The event was delivered in the form of a 2½-hour CPD Talk (Continuing Professional Development) for members of the Institution. The talk was sub-divided into two topical presentations on:

1. Technical sharing of the URA Ship Street redevelopment with highlight on the Wo Chong Pawn Shop revitalization.
(presented by Mr Ben Yuen of Grand Tech Construction Co. Ltd)
2. Highlight on the Urban Environment and the related development between Hong Kong and Shanghai on heritage buildings.
(presented by Mr Raymond Wong of City University of Hong Kong)

Aims of the event

Make use of specific project case to highlight the social, technical and economical significance of revitalization projects under Hong Kong urban environment. In order to provide a broader view on similar issues, a general review of what is happening in Shanghai is also introduced as part of the focus of the talk

Number of participants:

General feedback observed:

The content of the presentation prepared by the two speakers was considered to be highly substantial due to the expertise of the speakers with actual involvement in the handling of this kind of project or areas of study. The response to the theme of talks as observed from the participants during the Q&A session was also very encouraging. The reason was quite obvious, first of all, the participants were having a strong professional background and they could easily comprehend the significance behind the theme. Besides, this kind of first hand information is still rare in the field for there are not much similar projects being delivered in Hong Kong. Similarly, information on Shanghai especially making comparison to Hong Kong unique situation is also well received by the participants.
